AGC OF DC CELEBRATES 80 YEARS; INTRODUCES NEW OFFICERS

Washington, D.C. – The Associated General Contractors of Metropolitan Washington, D.C. (AGC of DC) today is celebrating its 80th anniversary during an event at the Hay Adams Hotel Rooftop. AGC of DC is the oldest industry association in the District; today’s event will celebrate the impact AGC of DC and its member companies have had on the Washington, D.C. region. The association’s member companies have built some of the region’s most recognizable landmarks from the World War II Memorial to the Washington Nationals Stadium.

“We are thrilled that AGC of DC has been the construction industry’s leading advocate in the D.C. region for the last 80 years,” said Cherie Pleasant, CEO of AGC of DC. “We are grateful to the many dedicated members and industry partners who have helped to make our success possible.”

The event will feature nearly 20 of AGC’s past presidents including Glen Ballowe, Volpe Construction (1966 President) and Jim Clark, Clark Construction Group (formerly George Hyman Co) (1967 President). AGC of DC will also announce that Shea Delutis-Smith, Clark Construction Group will be the association’s 2009-10 President and that Greg Druga, Grunley Construction Co. will serve as the Sr. Vice President.

The Associated General Contractors of Metropolitan Washington, D.C., founded in 1929, is the oldest industry association in the District and is a proud chapter of the Associated General Contractors of America. Its membership includes general contractors, construction managers, design-builders, specialty contractors, and associate members representing service providers and other industry professionals.
